Today, as we celebrate our college's Annual Day, I extend my heartfelt greetings and warm congratulations. Annual Day is a moment of pride and a very special occasion in the life of an educational institution. On this day, we celebrate the many achievements of our students and staff. We look at the journey of the institution in the past year, which inspires us to move forward with joy and conviction. At the same time, this day is not just about success; it is also about the hard work and efforts of all the students and the entire PGDAV family who are the pillars of the institution.

The college has always had a strong tradition of academics, sports, and cultural activities. This enriching environment, I firmly believe, encourages growth in every sphere and plays an important role in the making of a well-rounded individual. With great happiness, I congratulate the students for their accomplishments. I also express my gratitude to the parents and staff members whose constant support and guidance continue to shape the future of our students.

Dear students, as you move forward in life, I encourage you to remain confident, hardworking, and compassionate. I also wish to remind you of our DAV philosophy, inspired by the ideals of Maharishi Dayanand Saraswati, that the highest aim of education is not merely to acquire knowledge, but also to live a righteous life and to distinguish between truth and untruth. May you uphold these values in all that you do and strive to make a meaningful contribution to society.

I wish you all a bright and successful future and extend my heartfelt blessings and best wishes to each and every one of you for a life filled with achievement, happiness, and meaning.

"Art is not a mirror held up to reality but a hammer with which to shape it." — Bertolt Brecht

Eclectica, the English Literary Association of PGDAV College (M), is dedicated to providing a dynamic literary culture by encouraging critical thinking, creative expression, and meaningful academic engagement. Through its diverse range of events, the society seeks to create a space where literature is not only studied but also experienced, discussed, and imagined.

The first event of our society was held in September 2025 which was a collaborative event organised in association with Ecolibrium – The Economics Society of PGDAV College. The session featured a profound conversation with Mr. Sarnath Banerjee, a noted graphic novelist and artist. Centred around the themes of art, water, and development, the discussion provided an interdisciplinary perspective that enmeshed visual storytelling with ecological and socio-political concerns. The session encouraged participants to reflect on the role of art in interpreting contemporary realities.

This was followed by a Workshop on Research Methodology, conducted by Prof. Arjun Ghosh. Held in online mode, the workshop focused on equipping students with essential academic skills, including research design, critical analysis, and structured writing. It proved especially beneficial for senior semester students, helping them approach research with clarity and methodological precision.

The highlight of the session was Eclectica's annual literary fest, "Eglantine," held on 15th and 16th April 2026, which witnessed engaging participation from students across various colleges of the University of Delhi.

The first day of the fest featured two inter-college competitions:

Penchant – a self-written poetry recitation competition, where participants presented original compositions reflecting a wide range of themes, emotions, and literary expressions.

VoxPopuli: A Monologue Competition – an engaging platform for performers to bring characters and narratives to life through compelling individual performances.

Both events were conducted as inter-college competitions and saw active participation from students across DU, making the day a vibrant celebration of creativity and performance.

The second day of Eglantine focused on academic and interactive literary engagement:

"Critical Perspectives: A Young Students Conference", where participants presented their research papers on diverse themes. The session was further enriched by the presence of our esteemed alumna, Ms. Priyanka Verma—Associate Professor at Hansraj College, University of Delhi, whose academic work spans Dalit Studies, Gender Studies, and Indian Writing in English. She is currently pursuing doctoral research at the University of Delhi on caste and gender intersections in Dalit women's autobiographies. Her insights added depth and perspective to the event.

Alongside this, Eclectica continued its unique fest tradition of BYOB (Bring Your Own Book), organised near the college bank area. The initiative encouraged students to bring, exchange, and discuss books, fostering a culture of shared reading and literary interaction within the campus.

Through these events, Eclectica successfully established a balance between creative expression and academic engagement, reinforcing its role as a vibrant literary collective within the college.

The society continues to strive towards building an inclusive and intellectually stimulating environment, where literature becomes a means of dialogue, reflection, and community-building.

The second day emphasized community engagement, where local stakeholders shared their lived experiences of climate variability and adaptive practices. The workshop underscored the significance of integrating local ecological knowledge with scientific research, and emphasized participatory approaches in designing sustainable solutions.

Additionally, the department organized thematic seminars such as the National Seminar on International Ozone Day (16 September 2025) and the National Seminar on International Zero Waste Day (30 March 2026) in collaboration with ARPA Opportunity Foundation. Achievements of Hyperion

During the tenure 2025–2026, Hyperion secured a total of 191 wins. This achievement does not mark the conclusion of its success, as further victories continue to be added each day. It represents a significant and promising beginning for Hyperion as it progresses towards greater heights.

This journey became even more meaningful with Hyperion's participation in platforms like the Indian Institute of Technology (BHU) Varanasi, where students stepped outside their comfort zones, faced tough competition, and proved their abilities among some of the best. It was not just about competing, but about learning, growing, and representing Hyperion on a bigger stage.

But 191 isn't the end of the story, it's just a milestone along the way. The experience, confidence, and momentum gained this year are only setting the stage for what comes next. With stronger systems and an even more driven team, societies are still carrying this momentum forward, consistently winning prizes and setting new benchmarks.
